...and now for some reverse-psychology

Exactly. Well, how can you know who is lying and who is telling the truth? Just use your common sense. My story claims that neocons implanted nanochips into Obama's brain in 2009 in order to make him into their "Manchurian Candidate". This guy obviously got his scenario from the 2005 movie "Manchurian Candidate" starring Danzel Washington. It's just stupid. Amongst all the disinformation on the net, your best guide is your own common sense. If it sounds obviously stupid, then the guy is making it up. I hope everyone has learned a lesson here. Sibel Edmonds, by dint of her popularity, attracts a lot of disinformation agents and crazy people.

Yes, it applies to everyone. I have bad feelings about this forum – being more like a problem for Sibel. The easy solution is full delete. She has better control over comments to articles.

In this video (06:00 –08:00) Dr. Coldwell talks about the magnitude of efforts to discredit his cancer research. There are false websites, then more false websites with the first false websites as "truthwitness".

We have come to an Age of lying. On a false website the rule will be (?):

- We don't accept that kind of accusations (lying) – be civilized 😊

Man, are we going all over the place here. As far as I'm concerned I used to think that all people contributing to this forum are sincere; duh!, now that was apparently naive! Since this is all in writing it's hard to make out if somebody is actually sincere or pulling your leg (you know the body language thing that is missing here). As far as you go —, I noticed that you love to pick a fight and piss people off. Nothing wrong with that once in a while, but in my impression you have turned it into an art form which, quite frankly, tends to get a little annoying after a while. Either you think you're some sort of mega rebel, who needs to stir things up a little (too much), or your mind is a little twisted. Last possibility; you're ex-KGB working for the NSA now.

I don't know which it is —, but it is hard to still trust you this way, or for that matter, to take you seriously. I think I've already said this before, but I'm personally of the opinion that you need to make up your mind what it is you're doing here.
